Our Commitment To Privacy

Your privacy is important to us. To better protect your privacy, we provide this notice explaining our online information practices and the choices you can make about the way your information is collected and used. To make this notice easy to find, we make it available on our homepage and at every point where personally identifiable information may be requested. We use TrustMe.net as our third-party privacy certification service. If you have any issues or complaints with our privacy policies, you can contact TrustMe.net Guardian services via <http://www.trustme.net>. TrustMe.net will help you address any problems you have with our privacy practices so that we can improve our customer service.
